IMPORTANT: Out of EU the samples must be shipped "door to door" preferably with a freight forwarder or courier and labeled "Delivery Duty Paid".

Contest organizers are NOT to be held responsible for the total or partial loss of samples or any chemical/physical or organoleptic changes to the samples or any breakage or loss of the samples prior to their delivery nor for late shipments or delays.

Organizers are NOT responsible for any shipping costs including sanitary and customs duties. In no case will EVO IOOC EVO International Olive Oil Contest® pay any extra shipping costs. We recommend shipping "door to door" preferably with a freight forwarder or courier and "Delivery Duty Paid".

Only in exceptional cases, this organization will be able to anticipate any charges due for customs clearance; charges that must be reimbursed by the participating company before the start of the competition; otherwise the oils (EVOO or Condiments) pending with the payment will not be admitted to the competition.

Participants are advised to comply with the instructions on the entry form.

The organizer guarantees the secure warehousing of all samples on arrival and correct and appropriate conservation to preserve their quality. Any questions may be forwarded to: info@evo-iooc.com, or use your reserved area on the evo-iooc.com website.

10. Sample evaluation

After verifying all documentation pertaining to each sample (certification, labels, laboratory tests) as well as the entry documents and the conformity to current legislation, the sample will be placed in its specific category. The assessment sheet used for EVOOs will be based on the IOC sheet and graphically modified by EVO IOOC EVO International Olive Oil Contest® and will be based on a 0 to 100 point system. The assessment sheet used for Flavoured EVOOS is developed by the EVO IOOC EVO International Olive Oil Contest® technical committee, and will be based on a 0 to 100 point system.

11. The Jury

The President and a technical committee will select the jury and commission members. The number of judges tasting the samples will depend on the number of samples entered in the contest. Each Tasting panel is formed by 4 members: three judges and an responsible.

The President (Panel Leader) and the General Manager of EVO IOOC will preside the contest.

To ensure the maximum level of transparency, the EVO IOOC judges will not evaluate olive oils or flavoured oils from any company in which they or any of their relatives are involved, be it as producers, bottlers or distributors, etc..

To this end, all judges must sign a declaration in which s/he denies or declares involvement with companies in the oil growing, milling or bottling sectors. In the case that a judge does have connections s/he will be assigned oil samples where there is no conflict of interest.

12. Results

All winners will be notified on the EVO IOOC EVO International Olive Oil Contest® website (www.evo-iooc.com) on the results of the contest and will receive by e-mail a notification.

This will be the only official communication that a sample has won a prize and states the quality of the product as recognized by the panel of the EVO IOOC contest.

Any other form of advertising or communication of the results must be considered "temporary" awaiting the final communication on the official contest website www.evo-iooc.com

Any specific information regarding the judge's assessment identifying organoleptic qualities as well as any negative qualities and scoring of the samples may be requested in writing by the producer.

There are two distinct categories of awards in the EVO IOOC see 13. Awards.

Extra virgin olive oil:

- Best in Class, Special Award and Best of Country*;
- Others awards (Gold Medal, Silver Medal).

*Delivered duty paid (DDP) is a transaction where the seller pays for the total costs associated with transporting goods and is fully responsible for the goods until they are received and transferred to the buyer. This includes paying for shipping costs, export and import duties, insurance and any other expenses incurred during shipping of the goods. DDP is a type of delivery agreement that puts all of the risks and charges with the seller of the goods until delivery is made in the buyer's country at an agreed-upon location.
